Attempt to put MusiXTeX and fingering in sync

The image displays a musical sequence with notes and their corresponding fingering. The notes are: d, e, f#, a, f#, e, d. The fingering is represented by a diagram above the notes, where black dots indicate fingers used and white circles indicate fingers not used. The diagram is organized into two rows of seven columns each, separated by a horizontal line. The first row contains three black dots in each column. The second row contains three black dots in each column, except for the fourth column which contains a white circle. The notes are written on a five-line staff with a treble clef. The notes are: d (first line), e (second line), f# (third line), a (third space), f# (second space), e (second line), and d (first line). The notes are written in a style that is not standard musical notation, with some notes having a sharp sign and some having a flat sign.
